MEANING: There is only one Supreme being, who has eternal existence. He is the living power and is the creator. He is fearless (as He has no superior), bears no enmity with anyone (as He has no rival); time has no effect on Him, and He never takes any life form. He is self-illuminated and can be realized only with the grace of the Guru.

Word Meaning: Poostuk = (religious) books. Sundhiya = ritualistic prayers. Baadun(g) = religious debates. Sil = rock; idol. Poojus(i) = worships. Bagul Smaadhun(g) = meditate (hypocritically) like a heron (with deceit in mind). Bibhookun = ornaments; beautifies with ornamental wording. Saarun(g) = supreme. Brahman(g) = about Waheguru. Kermun(u) = deeds. Phokut = worthless. Nischaiy = for sure. Nischau = with full faith. Baat = path (to connect with Waheguru). 1.

MEANING: The Brahman reads his religious books and offers his ritualistic prayers too, but participates in (spiritually worthless debates to boost his ego. He worships idols and meditates like a heron as he has deceit in his mind (the heron focuses his sight, but only to catch its prey). He wears a ritualistic necklace around his neck and anoints his forehead. He also recites the holy Gayatri Mantra three times a day and has two dhotis; he covers his head with one while praying. But tells lies in beautiful, sweet words. Those who know the deeds to perform to please Waheguru know for sure that all such deeds of the Brahman are spiritually worthless. No one can find the true path (to have union with Waheguru) without Satguru; and the path is to recite Waheguru's Naam with full faith, oh Nanak. 1.

MEANING: The life of the individual goes to waste as long as he does not make a connection with Waheguru. The world is a sea of Maya, which many people swim across with the grace of the Guru. If one thinks carefully, they would know that Waheguru, who is fully capable of doing everything, is the creator of the basic ingredients to create the universe, oh Nanak. Waheguru, which has all the powers, controls everything. 2.

Word Meaning: Shubdum = obligation; primary responsibility. Soor = chivalry. Shoodur = the lowest caste persons. Pra Kriteh = serve others. Aik = only one. Bhayo = secret. Nirunjun Dayo = (like) Waheguru. 3.

MEANING: (According to the societal expectations), the primary responsibility (objective) of the yogis is to acquire the knowledge of their faith, while that of the Brahmans is to read the Vedas. Similarly, the primary responsibility of the Khatris is to fight with valour, and that of the lowest classes is to serve others. However, if someone knows the secret (of human responsibility), he knows that the primary responsibility of everyone is to serve Waheguru (by reciting His Naam and living as per the Teachings of the Guru). Such an individual (who worships Waheguru with full dedication) becomes like Waheguru, and I am a slave of such a holy saint, oh Nanak. 3.

And where does the love of his beloved brothers, friends, other relatives, and his family go? Where does the mind-captivating but capricious Maya go, who leaves him while he is still watching (under his eyes)? Only the worship of Waheguru remains with him all the time, which is acquired in the company of His holy saints, oh Nanak. 1.

With the precious human body, the man falls into the deep well of worldly attachments from where only Waheguru can protect him. So, he should pray to Waheguru for His mercy, oh Nanak. 3.

MEANING: The perishable human body has been created from water (along with other basic elements) and blood, and is wrapped in skin. It has nine doors, and the pillars of air (breaths) support it. The ignorant man believes it to be immortal, and does not remember (recite the Naam of) Waheguru. The invaluable human body finds salvation only in the shelter of the Guru, oh Nanak. So, one should always recite Waheguru's Naam. 4.

MEANING: If a devotee is imbued in, and is always intoxicated with his love for Guru's Shabad, has deep love for compassion (is highly compassionate), and singing Waheguru's praise is his major deed in the world, all his misbeliefs and his worldly attachments, which were operating in his mind, get eradicated. He sees Waheguru to be present everywhere. Waheguru resides on the tongues of His holy saints, and His holy Sight with His kindness never fails to fulfil the wishes of His devotees. MEANING: The beauty of things is declining (is perishable), and so is the glow of the sun, the moon, and the stars in the sky (they are all perishable). The earth, the mountains, and the trees with tall tops are all perishable. One's love for his wife, his sons, and his brothers is short-lived, and so are the different forms of Maya, including gold and pearls. The only thing which never decreases in its intensity is the immortal Waheguru. Also, eternal are the words of the Guru, and of the holy saints, oh Nanak. 9.

All your sins will be destroyed in the shelter of the holy saints. But only that devotee gets to take shelter of the holy saints whom Waheguru is overpleased with, and where he acquires all the qualities of high spirituality, oh Nanak. 10.

MEANING: The man with low wisdom gets engrossed in the enjoyment of the love of his wife with passion. He puts effort into maintaining his youthfulness and strength, and adorns himself with golden earrings. He enjoys his beautiful mansions and his expensive, good-looking clothes. This is how Maya affects (captivates) people in life. I bow to the immortal Waheguru, and long for the shelter of His holy saints (to be protected from the attacks of Maya), oh Nanak. 11.

MEANING: (Opposing incidents normally happen in life); for example, death follows birth; similarly, there are happy and sad occasions in life. While people enjoy the luxuries of life, ailments follow them. If one flies high at one time, he may drop to earth sometime in the future; similarly, people in low positions may enjoy higher positions. A rajah may be highly conceited of his power, but at some point, he may suffer humiliation (and may lose his power). But everything ends with the person's death. Only Waheguru's worship is everlasting, which accompanies the man even after his death. I wish for the Mental food of Waheguru's worship, oh Nanak. 12.

Singing praise of Waheguru is their mental food, and they stay detached from worldly attractions the way a lotus flower stays above the surface of water. With love and respect for Waheguru's worship, they offer the same advice to their friends and enemies (whom they also treat as friends). Giving up their selfishness and ego, they are humble like the dust of everybody's feet, and do not listen to any vilification of others, oh Nanak. 40.

Such people never achieve success, no matter how many different measures they try; they are taken through the hell of death and births. Reciting Waheguru's Naam in the company of the holy saints purifies the mind. So, sing Waheguru's praise all the time, oh Nanak. 42.

The never-ending griefs change into happy occasions, and the people who have become weak because of their fears become fearless, and a frightening jungle becomes a big residential city. These are the feelings of the highly spiritual devotees, who acquire them with the benevolence of Waheguru. So, recite Waheguru's Naam in the shelter of the Guru and acquire the shelter of the Feet (Naam) of the benevolent Waheguru, oh Nanak. 44.

Manookhyun(g) = humans. Bimohneh = captivate. Kernhaarun(g) = the creator. Numuskaarun(g) = salute; bow to. 45.

MEANING: You are extremely powerful and unbeatable in your fight for control of the human mind, and you have crushed countless of them (fully controlled them), oh Maya. You captivate the minds of all – they may be assistants of the gods, or their musicians, or gods themselves; they may be humans, animals, or birds. So, to resist control of your mind by Maya (worldly attractions), one should bow to the creator of the world, Waheguru, and seek His shelter, oh Nanak. 45.

You have access to all the humans in the three-layered universe, captivate their minds, and destroy their efforts to have union with Waheguru and their noble nature. For a little enjoyment, you rob them of their spiritual wealth; you do not rest at any one place, and equally overpower the rich and the poor. With the benevolence of Waheguru, one can get rid of one's control on his mind in the shelter of the Guru, oh Nanak. 46.
